A top down approach to AI implementation Needed

An EY paper explains why AI needs to be developed from the top down to realize maximum potential for an organization. The paper notes that a large scale adoption of AI needs to be integrated with corporate strategy in a top down manner that takes into account the overall needs of the organization. It points out that too often AI projects are initiated by smaller segments of the organization without considering the big picture from a strategic point of view.

For a copy of the paper, click this link: https://www.ey.com/en_ca/insights/consulting/why-enabling-ais-full-value-requires-top-down-thinking